KNOW WHO YOU WORK FOR

Who you are and what you stand for are beliefs that are important to you. Should the values, reputation and performance of the company you work for be any less important?

When researching a prospective employer, it is important to consider WHO you will be working for because the mutual fit between you and your employer will be a fundamental determinate of job satisfaction.

WHO IS FASTENAL?

EMPLOYEE SATISFACTION:

Fastenal team members are empowered to make business decisions on a daily basis and are encouraged to create career advancement opportunity through performance excellence.

"While I have worked many jobs throughout high school and college, no company has given me more responsibility and opportunity than Fastenal. The decisions I make on a daily basis have a direct effect on the company and I am given all the tools that I need to succeed. The biggest reason that I enjoy working for Fastenal is that my superiors take a vested interest in shaping me into a quality business professional."

Chad, Sales Trainee
Business Administration Major

"One of the things I enjoy most about working at Fastenal is the ability to make my own decisions on a day to day basis. My job in the distribution center is customer service oriented, so I must make sure that I am accurate and timely with anything I do. It is a pleasure to work with such a great group of people, and I look forward to advancement within the company."

Robbie, Part time Distribution Center Lead
