The Developmental Studies Department offers basic and developmental courses that prepare students for college-level course work. Based on ACT sub scores or COMPASS test scores, some students may be required to enroll in these courses. Students may enroll in college-level courses while taking developmental studies courses but should select courses that do not require skills in which they are currently deficient.

The Developmental Studies Program at Southwest follows the A-100 Guidelines of the Tennessee Board of Regents.

Placement

Placement into the Developmental Studies Program (DSP) is based on the same guidelines for all Tennessee Board of Regents institutions. Students under 21 years of age are placed according to valid ACT subscores in English, Mathematics, and Reading. Students 21 years or older are most often placed according to their scores on an appropriate placement test. If valid ACT subscores are available, they can be used for placement.

If a student wants to challenge his or her initial placement, an alternative test is available. The challenge of placement in mathematics, reading or writing must be done before enrolling in the first DSP course in the subject area. Contact the Testing Center at either the Macon Cove Campus, (901) 333-4170, or the Union Avenue Campus, (901) 333-5127, to make an appointment for the appropriate challenge test. A fee is charged for the test.

For additional information regarding DSP placement, contact the Developmental Studies office at the Macon Cove or Union Avenue campuses.

Class Attendance

Students in basic and developmental courses are expected to attend every scheduled class regularly and punctually. If an illness or emergency results in an absence, the responsibility for determining the extent of what has been missed and for making up all assigned work rests with the student. Absences may adversely affect the course grade or may result in a grade of "F" for the course.

Grading

Minimum standards for successful completion of basic or developmental courses will be a grade of "C." All credit hours earned in courses designated as basic or developmental will be in addition to the hours required for degrees or certificates.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE STUDIES
Associate of Applied Science Degree
Corrections Concentration

Cynthia Calhoun, Ed.D. ■ (901) 333-5196

This program prepares students for career opportunities in criminal justice agencies. Sufficient theoretical preparation and practical experience enable graduates to function effectively in a variety of paraprofessional settings. This program is not designed for transfer. However, many institutions accept all or part of the course work toward the baccalaureate degree. Christian Brothers University and LeMoyne-Owen College accept the A.A.S. degree in Criminal Justice (Police Science and Corrections concentrations) towards requirements for the baccalaureate degree in Applied Psychology and Social Sciences, respectively. Students intending to transfer credits should contact both their advisor and the transfer institution to determine applicable policies or restrictions.
